SENATOR HEFLIN ASSAILS SECRETARY

LINKS JESSE SMITH IN DEAL FOR TWO MILLION

Claims He Knew Two Much and was Put Out of the Way—Jury That Acquitted Fall and Doheny Were "Dice Shooters and Card Players"—Asks That Sinclair Case Be Tried In Some Other City.

stated the other day that Jess Smith knew more than anybody else connected with the department of justice of the high handed work of Mr. Daugherty and that the reason for getting rid of him was a very strong one.

"We are conducting in Washington a general investigation of the whole thing. It was rumored also that Jess Smith grew exceedingly nervous over it and that he had made up his mind to make a clean breast of it all. But Jess Smith never lived to make that clean breast. He was murdered."

The jury that acquitted Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny in the oil conspiracy case was described by Senator Heflin as a collection of "dice shooters and card players" and he suggested the senate ask that the conspiracy charges against Fall and Harry F. Sinclair be tried in some other city.

Unlimbering another attack on the Harding administration, Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama, told the senate Monday that Attorney General Daugherty's friend, Jess Smith, was murdered "because he knew too much," and that it would "open the eyes of the nation" if the inside story of the recent Fall-Doheny oil conspiracy acquittal in Washington ever were told.

Secretary Mellon was pictured by the Alabama as receiving funds collected by Smith from "brewers and bootleggers" in payment of advances to the Harding campaign fund. In all, he said, the treasury secretary advanced $5,000,000 to the Republican national committee and Smith was delegated to get back $2,000,000 of it from the bootleg trade and thru the agency of U. S. district attorneys.

To support his statement the senator produced excerpts from testimony given by former District Attorney Boyles testified he talked with Frank court proceeding at Mobile. The court records, he said, showed that Boyles testified he talked with Frank W. Berkin, a friend of Smith about raising the $2,000,000.

Reading from the record, Heflin said Boyles quoted Berkin as saying that "the plan is to have liquor men, the men in the liquor business and the brewers to contribute to this fund, and that U. S. attorneys in some places 'had been arranged with' to do the actual collecting."

All of this testimony, said Senator Heflin, was read at a secret meeting of the senate judiciary committee last April when Boyles' nomination for another term as district attorney was pending. Boyles himself was present and, according to the committee record, he said at one point that he had not said the things attributed to him. The district attorney did say, however, according to Senator Heflin, that he had asked Jess Smith to help his candidate for U. S. marshal.

"So Boyles was to get Jess Smith, this bootlegger-gambler, to have his man appointed U. S. marshal to gather in the loot in this rotten work."

"I don't know whether it was Mellon's money or the government's but I know $3,000,000 was brought in and Jess Smith was assigned to get the other $2,000,000."

Senator Heflin said he made these statements because he had heard that he would receive a request from District Attorney Buckner of New York for evidence to bear out his charge that Smith was murdered. He continued:

"This was one of the reasons why they wanted to get rid of Smith."

BURGLARS MAKE VISIT.

The home of Allen Arbogast, 439 East Mound street, was entered Monday night by burglars who pried open a rear door and went thru the house. The thief made his way to the bedroom secured Mr. Arbogast's trousers and took from the pockets 85 cents and a cigaret case. The trousers were found this morning on the sidewalk in front of the house.

Opposed All Machines

Oil-Boom Towns "Bite Off" Too Much in Bonds

Oklahoma City.—Cities that "might have been" and on which high tax rates were levied after heavy bond issues had been voted are frequent in Oklahoma history.

Devall and Pershing, both small oil towns in Oklahoma, were given as examples by Randall Cobb, assistant attorney general in charge of the state bond department.

Six years ago oil was brought to the surface in the vicinity of the latter village of Pershing. Visualizing a large city in the future, the ambitious citizens voted a $40,000 bond issue for a water works system.

Oil production dwindled and the city's population decreased. Pershing is now indebted for nearly half its valuation.

At Devall, when oil was found, a "boom" occurred and citizens voted large amounts for municipal improvements. Then the population decreased and taxes bounded to excessive rates. A number of citizens moved outside the city limits to avoid paying the levy.

MANY WHITE CROSSES ARE ON HIGHWAYS

Most Accidents on Straight, Level Roads Thought to be Safe.

More than 1800 white crosses now dot the highways of Ohio, each showing where a life has been snuffed out in an automobile accident, George F. Schlessinger, state highway director, of Columbus, has announced.

This does not represent the total highway casualty list by any means, the director said, because in many cases there would be too many in one spot.

Crosses have not been erected in other cases where friends or relatives of the victims have protested that it is a cruel reminder of their loss, Schlessinger said.

The object of the crosses is to remind automobile drivers that constant care must be observed to prevent accidents. The department tells that the lesson has been effective.

Of the crosses erected, the greatest number have been used to mark accidents on straight sections of level road, usually considered the most safe. Thirty per cent mark railroad crossing deaths. Turns and curves were the site of 18 per cent of the accidents marked, while hills, bridges and road intersections have received approximately six per cent each.

F. G. Bailey, of Surrey, England, has asked for information on the white cross system for use in British illustrated publications.

Judge Tells Father to "Strap" His Son

Philadelphia.—Judge Harry C. McDevitt in Quarter Sessions court advised the father of an eighteen-year-old boy to inflict a good licking to prevent the youth from finding his way behind prison walls.

There were two boys before the court charged with stealing an automobile, Francis Qualtin, eighteen years old, and Elmer Lehman, sixteen. The automobile of Mrs. Anna B. Meyers was stolen October 8. Police-man McDevitt found the two youths and a third in possession of the car at three o'clock in the morning. The three were taken to the station house, where one escaped.

Qualtin and Lehman were found not guilty. They told of meeting the third boy, who said the automobile was his father's, and they accepted an invitation to take a ride. Judge McDevitt, questioning them, learned Lehman has been in juvenile court and a year ago escaped from an institution at Elwyn, Pa.

John Qualtin, the father of Francis, was called by Judge McDevitt and asked:

"What kind of a razor do you use?"

"A safety razor," was the parent's answer.

"Don't you have a razor strap?"

"Yes, I have."

"Well, take this boy home and don't spare the strap. These boys were very fortunate in having the jury believe them. I don't."

If America had never been discovered what would have become of the tourist towns of Europe.

Mrs. Elkins refused to vote. She says she's supported one man all her life and that's enough for one woman.

OHIO IS GROW- ING CHRISTMAS TREES AT HOME

Growing Christmas trees has come to be a recognized industry in Ohio. Landowners of the state have planted over a million evergreen trees for Christmas tree purposes during the past 10 years. The home grown trees are far superior to those shipped in from long distances, according to Edmund Secrest, state forester at the Ohio Experiment Station. They can be cut a few days before Christmas, and delivered to the household in fresh condition. They retain their foliage many days after Christmas, and have a delightful "piney woods fragrance."

Trees imported from long distances are often cut in early November or late October. They are bundled tightly, the branches are torn and twisted, and the foliage commences to fall as soon as they are brought into the warm house.

Norway and white spruce are best adapted for Christmas tree uses. They are handsome in appearance, are easily transplanted, grow rapidly, and are well adapted to most parts of Ohio.

Growing Christmas trees offers the landowner the opportunity to utilize idle and low grade lands. These trees do well on steep slopes, and worn out pasture fields where the soil is well drained.

It is also a good plan to plant Norway spruce thickly in forest plantations and thin out when the trees are large enough for Christmas use, letting enough of the trees stand for a forest.

Christmas tree plantations enable landowners to utilize idle lands for a profitable crop. For the Christmas season they provide homes with the best trees obtainable. Mr. Secrest hopes that Ohio will soon be able to provide her own needs in Christmas trees, and thus eliminate the necessity of importing trees from long distances, and the grave chances of importing into Ohio some of the serious tree diseases and insects that menace the forests of the northeastern United States.

HOW THE WEATHER

Helped George Washington Win a Battle.

Upon so slight a factor as the weather rested the hopes of the Colonial Armies at one time during the Revolution, according to Hugh Fullerton in an article in this week's Liberty. It was at Christmastide, 1776, just before the Battle of Trenton, Fullerton points out. General Washington with his small army was stationed just across the Delaware River from Trenton, in Pennsylvania. He planned to cross the river under cover of darkness and surprise the British and Hessian troops stationed in Trenton.

"The fate of the United States depended upon the weather," the writer points out. "On the night of December 20, the weather turned bitter cold. The river, as far as the falls above Trenton, froze solid. On that Sunday the British prepared to cross on the ice and march to Philadelphia, but decided to wait until the ice was solid enough to permit the transport of cannon.

"All day Sunday Washington anxiously watched the weather. On Monday the weather turned suddenly warm. A heavy thaw set in. The already swollen river broke up the ice. Tuesday was still warmer, with a warm rain that made the roads a sea of mud."

"This delayed the British, as the writer points out, and enabled the Americans to cross the river at night and surprise the much larger enemy forces in the midst of holiday revelry, putting them to rout. This bit of strategy, now known as the Battle of Trenton, gave the revolutionists new courage and undoubtedly contributed to the final success of the revolution.

WILLIAMSPORT TEMPERANCE WOMEN MEET

Miss Mary Porter Gave An Interesting Account of the Convention in Los Angeles.

The Williamsport Woman's Christian Temperance Union which is one of the largest and most flourishing Unions in this county held a very interesting and successful meeting at the pretty and commodious home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Dunlap, Thurs afternoon, December 16. The president, Miss Mary Porter, presided.

The meeting opened by singing "Joy to the World." Miss Hazel Morgan read the scripture lesson which was taken from the second chapter of St. Luke and was followed by a beautiful Christmas carol entitled "Silent Night" by Mrs. Estelle Johnson. The devotions were led by Rev. Mr. Trout. Roll call followed and business pertaining to the work. A very pretty piano duet was contributed by Miss Margaret Dunlap and Miss Dorothy Cryder. Miss Mary Porter, president of the Tarlton W. C. T. U. was introduced and gave a highly interesting report of the fifty-second annual convention National Women's Christian Temperance Union, which she attended in Los Angeles, California, from September 26 to October 1, which proved to be one of the largest and most interesting ever held by this organization.

Following are some sketches given from the annual address of Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president, national W. C. T. U.:

It is a notable occasion when a woman's organization meets to celebrate its 52 anniversary which is being done at this convention. We are confirmed in our belief that prohibition is the best method yet tried of solving the liquor problem. Straight thinking on the prohibition question is needed. The most cleverly organized, most effective, most efficient, most extensive and most insidious propaganda movement in the history of America is now functioning at full speed in an effort to break down the legal victory over the liquor traffic achieved after 50 years of laborious effort, ridicule and sacrifice even unto death. It is interesting that the demand for larger alcoholic content is always accompanied by the statement "No Saloon Ever." Where will such liquor be sold? Some new place must be created where they may be sold and whatever its name, whether it be wine room, corner grocery or hotel bar room, it will partake of the nature of the saloon.

There should be no compromise with violators of law. There should be no surrender to those who are stealthily seeking to nullify the constitution. A compromise means defeat for prohibition. The failure of prohibition in America means the failure of prohibition for the world. The motion picture Producers and Distributors of America have recently adopted a policy that no film produced in its ranks shall in the slightest degree encourage disrespect for any law, especially the prohibition law. This is a notable advance. The aroused womanhood of America in defense of the Eighteenth Amendment and Law Enforcement was shown by the petition signed by eighty of the most prominent women of America which presented to President Coolidge a memorial against the return of beer and wine and by the second annual meeting of the National Woman's committee for Law Enforcement, Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, president. The committee is composed of women representing eighteen Home and Foreign Missionary societies of the Protestant churches. They stand firmly for law enforcement and their large delegation of women formerly unidentified with the temperance work made a tremendous impression at the hearing.

The following are excerpts from the statement of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ before the senate committee on prohibition and show the standing of the organized Evangelical churches. From the beginning of its existence the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America has been unequivocally committed to the policy of prohibition. No divergent judgment has at any time been expressed either by the Federal Council of Churches or by any of its constituent denominations. Our W. C. T. U. membership campaign which has resulted in enrolling more than five thousand new members above all losses by death and otherwise is our answer of the women of America to the charge that there is a change of public sentiment in regard to prohibition. The slogan of the W. C. T. U. for this coming year is "Hold Fast and Go Forward." Abraham Lincoln said if we can first know where we are whither we are tending we could better judge what to do and how to do it. We know where we are, we are approaching the close of the seventh year of constitutional prohibition and we holding fast against the siege of wet propaganda. We are going forward toward effective enforcement thru our definite program of what to do and how to do it. We know where we are, we know whither we are tending, what to do and to do it.

Miss Porter was given a rising vote of thanks for her splendid report by the large audience in attendance.

A pleasing vocal solo followed by Mrs. Johnson accompanied by Miss Heiskell on the piano. The program closed with the W. C. T. U. benediction.

A delightful social period followed during which the hostess and her assistants served delicious refreshments. Among the visitors in attendance was Mrs. S. W. Dunlap of Circleville.

AMUSEMENTS

An unusual, exceptionally fine motion picture came to the Met yesterday, when the initial presentation of Paramount's "You Never Know Women," delighted a capacity audience. The story is an original by Ernest Vajda, noted Hungarian dramatist.

This production, starring Florene Vidor, may well be called "different." It combines spectacle with drama, vaudeville with lavishness and musical comedy with picturesqueness. All are logically introduced into the story's theme, centering as it does, around the principals of a Russian Variety company.

Miss Vidor and Clive Brook form the team of Vera and Norodin, "magic workers and illusionists." A romance, developed during their long partnership, hits a snag when Lowell Sherman snatches Miss Vidor from the path of a falling girder. An acquaintanceship ensues which ripens into apparent love.

Such well known celebrities are seen in the firm as The Russian Balalaika orchestra, The Melford Troupe, Fortunello and Cirinelli, Louis and Freda Berkoff and scores of dancers, acrobats and jugglers. "You never Know Women" also marks the screen debut of an apt comedian, El Brendel.

Paramount furnished Director William Wellman with a perfect cast and a fine story. The net result, as might be expected—is great "A-1" entertainment.

No don't be silly. Of course, Lowell Sherman doesn't win the girl! See the picture and find out who does.

Peoples of the East Accept Death Lightly

To the West, death is a closed door; to the East, an open one. An American told me recently that, when he was in China on an official mission, he and his colleagues were entertained by a delightful little mandarin, who was always cheerful and considerate. He had a remarkable insight into European politics, which he discussed enthusiastically and at length. His smile was as persistent as his jokes, yet he was under sentence of death. The sentence was carried out the day after the American mission left.

In a certain Arabian state, an official was exceedingly kind in helping me organize a caravan. One day I asked his wife if her lord could accompany me to the market to choose some new waterskins.

"He is to be hanged tomorrow," she said, "by the emir's order, but his brother will go with you."

Last year I was passing through Syria. I stopped to drink mint tea with an old friend, wife of a patriot, or a revolutionary—the terms are synonymous in the East. It just depends which side you're on!

"How is the master?" I asked politely, over my third scented glass. "The French killed him last week," my hostess answered unmoved. I gasped horror and protest. "He leaves five sons," she reassured me, surprised at my emotion.—Rosa Forbes in Pearson's Magazine.

Claims He Was Intoxicated When He Killed Six Year Old Boy.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—Harold J. Croarkin, 26 years old, son of a wealthy flour dealer, surrendered to the police tonight and immediately confessed that he had killed Walter Schmith, 6 years old, who was beaten to death after being lured into the barns of a North Side riding academy Friday night.

Croarkin, the police said, admitted without restraint that he had lured the boy into the barn and had killed him but pleaded that he was intoxicated at the time and did not know what he was doing.

WASHINGTON

NEWS SPECIALS

Washington, Dec. 18.—John W. Langley, of Kentucky, once a power in the house of representatives, was granted a parole today from the Atlanta penitentiary. Langley, who probably will be released Monday, has served one year of a two year sentence for conspiring to violate the prohibition law. By good conduct he obtained, under regular prison rules, a recommendation for parole, which Attorney General Sargent granted without action from the White House.

Washington, Dec. 18.—One of the more popular solutions of the Christmas gift problem, that of giving $2.50 gold pieces, received a boost today when the United States treasury ordered the minting of 520,000 of the "quarter-eagles" to be minted will fall far short of the demand. There is no insufficiency of the supply of $5, $10 and $20 gold pieces, the treasury having coins of these denominations worth more than $500,000,000 on hand.

TOBACCO-CHEW-

ING DEER MAY REPLACE HUSKIES

Animals Require Less Food and Afford Lighter Transportation Over Snow.

Anchorage, Alaska, Dec. 20.—Tobacco chewing reindeer, possessing the stubbornness of a mule and the fighting qualities of Gene Tunney, bid fair to challenge the supremacy of the malamutes in the field of Alaskan transportation.

This is the belief of W. G. Culver, formerly of the United States bureau of education, who says Eskimo herders of Broad Pass are finding a ready sale to prospectors of sled-broke reindeer for draught purposes.

The use of dogs entails hauling dog feed to a base of operation and feeding the animals during the summer months when they have no work to perform. It has been found more economical to utilize a pair of reindeer for hauling supplies over the spring snow crust and then butchering the animals for meat at the end of the journey.

Where it once required 50 pounds of tallow, 100 pounds of corn meal and 100 pounds of rice with addition of dried salmon to feed a dog during the summer, 100 pounds of corn meal and a small quantity of reindeer moss suffices to cover a journey of a hundred miles with a reindeer team, and the prospector's grub bill is reduced to the extent of about 160 pounds of reindeer meat.

Reindeer are extremely temperamental and must be handled with diplomacy and discretion, says Culver.

"Better call a truce when 'Reiny' becomes temperamental," he advises. "Offer him a chew of the various brands of strong plug tobacco, then sit down and wait until the steed's mental process digests his single idea—that of adamant stubbornness—and supplants it with something bespeaking a desire to travel."

M'DERMOTT IS DIRECTING HIS OWN DEFENSE

Canton, O., Dec. 18.—Pat McDermott, alleged "trigger man" in the assassination of Don R. Mellett, sat on the edge of his prison cot tonight making notes until "lights out."

The defense opened its case today at McDermott's trial for the Mellett murder, and McDermott is directing the campaign. With his hair slicked back immaculately and his eyes darting over the courtroom, McDermott suggests questions to be put to each witness.

E. L. Mills and Homer Durand, McDermott's lawyers, are two large men. Pat sits between them, a small, slim, pasty-faced youth. He chews gum incessantly. He is always smiling—smiling away the shadow of the electric chair.

Pat is confident of being acquitted, despite the array of circumstantial evidence against him. "They can't frame me for something I didn't do," McDermott said during a recess today. "I've just begun to fight."

Fidel LaBarba Close Follower of All Sports

Fidel LaBarba, the world's fly-weight champion, while making his livelihood out of boxing, is one of the closest followers of intercollegiate athletics on the Pacific coast. The little 112-pound champion can name offhand the stars of eastern football teams which have journeyed to California to compete in intersectional struggles and he can also cite the best performances of the leading track and field athletes.

LaBarba is a product of the amateur ranks. He has a high school education and the money he is making out of boxing he is saving for a college education. Although a native of Los Angeles, where the University of Southern California is located, Fidel intends to cast his lot with Leland Stanford, where Glen "Pop" Warner is head football coach.

HUSBAND SLAYS HIMSELF AFTER SHOOTING WIFE
Glass Worker Blows Head Off With Shotgun as Climax of Quarrel Over Divorce.

Lancaster, Dec. 19.—Elton Smith, 35, glass worker, is dead, his head blown off with a shotgun in his own hand; his wife, Olive, 21, is in Lancaster Hospital suffering from a load of buckshot in her side, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Aimee LeJeune, is on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

Smith and his wife were engaged in a divorce suit, and tonight he concealed himself near the garage at the rear of her mother's home.

She put the machine away and, on her way to the house, Smith shot her. Her mother heard the shot and ran to her daughter's side.

Smith leveled the shotgun at Mrs. LeJeune. Mrs. LeJeune ran and was lost to Smith in the darkness.

After Smith gave up the chase he turned the gun on himself.

They have one child, 4 years old.

40 MILLION BARREL APPLE CROP
Federal statisticians this month revising their estimates of the apple crop, report that it will amount to about 40,000,000 barrels in round numbers as compared with 33,000,000 last year. This indicates that the people of the United States will have an abundance of apples this winter and that there will be a great variety of them from which to select for winter storage.

The box apple crop comes chiefly from the western states while the barrel apples come from eastern, mid-western and southern territory.

New England is reported to have a 2,110,000 barrel crop while exceptionally heavy crops are reported from Virginia and West Virginia. There are apples aplenty to give everybody his apple a day and make life a burden for the doctor. The quality of the crop is unusually high and already the fancy grade apples coming to the market are attracting many buyers. As one customer remarked, "They look too pretty to eat."

Apples for centerpieces for banquets and formal dinners have become popular decorative features and the combinations of dark red, light red and yellow have been used to excellent effect.

Apples of unusual beauty are displayed in every fruit store and green grocery this fall. Prices are more reasonable than they have been in a long time.

Middle Ages Defined
